The school has a partially selective admission policy. At the beginning of 2015 Graveney was assessed in an inspection report of Osted as exceptional. [1] History While Greeney School can trace its origins to a school founded at the end of the 1660s by Sir Walter St John, 3rd baronet, at Battersea, modern Graveney was founded in the 1986 as an amalgamation of Ensham School (for girls) and Furzedown secondary school (mixed). Furzedown was also formed in the 1977 as an amalgamation of the Battersea grammar school (for boys) and Rosa Bassett School (for girls). Created as a standard complete school under the control of the local educational authority The Ilea, later Wandsworth), a significant change occurred in 1991 when Graveney became a to School. [2] [3] giving much greater control to school governors. Following the changes resulting from the school rules and the 1998 Framework Act abolishing the maintenance status of the grant, the school retained a degree of independence by electing to become a foundation school. The school achieved the status of a college of technology in 1995 [4] and also moved into a partially selective admission policy in September of that year [5] [6]. Since the introduction of selection, the school has been allowed to select up to 50% of students by ability; however, this was reduced to 25% in 2000, [7] increased to 30% in 2001 [8] and reduced to 25% in 2004, [9] where it remains in 2008. [4] Graveney School converted to become an Academy on August 1, 2011. [10] Years 7 to 11 When students start their life at Graveney in Year 7, they are placed in series according to their grade 6 SAT, their Wandsworth test result and the letter of recommendation from their previous teacher. Students can be extended (4 classes), enrichment (3 classes) or effort (2 classes). Students can be moved on sets according to their abilities. However, most remain in their assigned stream. Students in an effort class receive personal mentoring from the school, with their tutor who is often a member of the special needs department. Years 7 to 9 Extension and Enrichment Study a modern foreign language. These could be French or Spanish. From year 8 onwards, there is an opportunity to do twilight classes, which means that students can study an additional modern foreign language E.G. German, French or Spanish. Years 10-11 After Christmas in Year 9, usually February or March, students choose their GCSE options. English Language and Literature, Mathematics, Science and PE are for the two years. They are usually chosen up to three additional subjects, depending on the expected potential, with high-performance students, given the possibility to make the drama "Twilight" or astronomy as extra outside the GCSE school. With greetings to, aMost students make the Triple Science Award - A GCSE for biology, chemistry and physics, while some make the combined scientific award. The results results of the year 9 determine what the students establishes. The sixth form of Graveney also has a large sixth college of the format, offering a subject ray to be studied at the level. The sixth shape is open for the application to both internal students (students who have studied in Graveney School) and external candidates (students who received their secondary education elsewhere). The sixth shape offers a series of subjects that were not available to take GCSE level, such as film studios, government and politics, further mathematics, philosophy, photography and psychology, although some of these subjects work only if a considerable number of students apply it. Students can also resume GCSEs. The sixth shape has minimum input requirements of 5 to * -C at GCSE level for internal students and 7 A * -CS for external candidates. For a student he graduated from the year 12 a year 13, they must have reached minimum degrees of two es at the level. The sixth form does not have a uniform policy, however students must wear their identity card visibly at all times. Site and Graveney buildings initially operated on both the first Furzedown and Ensham sites; However, the Ansham building was soon closed and the school now occupies what was the secondary school of furzedown on both sides of the Welham street in the tooting, southwest of London. The part of the site on the southern side of Welham Road is the former Bassett Rosa School, whose main building was opened in 1913. [11] The largest area north of the road is the former College Furzedown Training College (a university education teacher), which was opened in 1915. [12] The buildings surround a tree-lined campus and include Furzedown House, a Georgian house listed grade II [13], built in 1794. [12] [14] Other buildings include: Red House, University House, Lower School, Higher Science, Lower Science, Atkins Atkins Center, Tech Block, an independent study center, Oppenheimer Observatory, a sports hall and a multigym. Each building is dedicated to two or more subjects. School of Philosophy and Philosophy Studies of Philosophy, Philosophy and Philosophy Studies of Philosophy, Philosophy and Philosophy On the north side of Welham Road. There is also a recreational area owned by the Wandsworth Council but used by Graveney during school hours for sports studies and PE lessons. The area is composed of a small racing track, a star grassy carpet field, two tennis courts that can be converted into another field and a cricket area. Doctors and Presidencies 1986-1989 John A. Phillips, BA (Oxon)[15] 1989's Graham Stapleton, MA (Cantab) (principal now) John Phillips had been director of the secondary schools of Battersea Grammar and Furzedown before his appointment to Graveney. Graveney now has a separate principal and head teacher (first vice-principal); The most recent headteacher was Keith Barbrook, who left in 2017. The three traditional houses of Graveney were San Giovanni, Rosa Bassel and Ensham. However, after the summer of 2018, two new houses were added: Furzedown and Battersea. St. John (pronounced) "By the name of Sir Walter St John, 3rd Baronet, who founded the school that became Battersea Grammar School; The emblem on the house, a golden hawk, derives from the crest on Sir Walter's crest. Gloria Brevis, honor Longus. Rosa Bassett is named after Rosa Bassett, the first headmistress of the county secondary school, who became Rosa Bassett School. The motto of the house, Honasta Obtinete, and the blurry scarlet emblem are both taken from those of the Rosa Bassett School. Test 128: "by the name of the Ensham School. For Ardua Ad Alta.
